ORGANIC

2019 Rosé

SOUTH AUSTRALIA

DELICIOUS.COM.AU - ERINA STARKEY - 13.09.19

“Pair it with fresh seafood or a springtime salad. Angove has just dropped their 2019 vintage, and among them is one wine that ticks all the boxes - organic, vegan and affordable, not to mention, the most flattering shade of salmon pink.

And of course, it tastes pretty darn quaffable too. The new pink tippie reveals watermelon and cherry on the nose, followed by juicy raspberries and strawberries and cream on the palate.

Grown in Paringa in South Australia, the rosé is made from ripe Shiraz fruit, grown in a certified organic pocket of vineyard near the Murray River. It's also vegan, too. While most wines on the market use milk, eggs and sometimes even dried fish bladders (known as isinglass) to filter and clarify their wines, Angove use only free-run juice (minus the harder pressed parts) so it doesn't require any fining.”
