“Lost Farm is the name of the Tasmanian project of South Australia’s Angove Family - it does not have anything to do with the golf course. This is a very fresh and lively 2023 sauvignon blanc with the grapes sourced from two vineyards in the north of the state: one at Relbia, south of Launceston, and the other in the West Tamar. It paired impressively with a pork mince and aubergine stir-fry with its zingy fruit flavours and crisp acidity complementing the spice of the dish. Sauvignon Blanc in Tasmania typically has more tropical fruit flavours than herbal ones; and that is certainly the case here.”
